

What is Bloom360?

- A non-profit school for children with neuro-diverse needs set to open in southeastern Wisconsin in 2017.
- A team of highly trained teachers, therapists and social workers who are ready to provide a refreshing developmental, strengths and relationship-based approach to education that recaptures the joy of learning for kids with neuro-diverse needs.
- An educational model that is rooted in science and focuses on nurturing the five key areas of human development: emotional, body, social, spirit and mind.
- A combination of world-class best practices from leading learning communities blended into an educational model that is uniquely our own.

Why Bloom360?

- Approximately 20% of all school-aged children nationwide have neuro-diverse needs. A traditional classroom often is not able to support these children in reaching their full potential.
- At Bloom360, our focus is on customized developmental learning plans that are carefully guided by our expert team. We've done our homework, so Bloom360 learners can feel supported as they branch out, grow and thrive.

Bloom360 Learning Community is personal for founder and president Laura Rauman and her daughter Morgan (pictured above.) Laura is dedicated to providing the best educational and enriching opportunities for her daughter and many other children with neuro-diverse needs.

Laura, Managing Principal of business consulting firm Vista360, LLC, assembled a team of special education, human development and business experts to create Bloom360. The goal is for Morgan and every child with neuro-diverse needs in southeastern Wisconsin and beyond to have a world-class school to help them bloom.

Questions? Please contact:

Cindy Gosh-Lee
Bloom360 Project Manager
414-935-6362
cgosh-lee@vista360llc.com

Bloom360 Learning Community is a 501(c)(3) school planned to open in southeastern Wisconsin in 2017.

For more information about Bloom360 Learning Community, visit: www.bloom360.org